MACROECONOMIC OVERVIEW

The US economy rebounded in the second quarter after shrinking in the first quarter. Gross domestic product (GDP) rose 3.8% in the second quarter according to the Bureau of Economic Analysis' third GDP reading released in late September. Meanwhile, inflation rose 2.9% in August from a year earlier, higher than its 2.7% pace of growth in July. The September payroll report from the Bureau of Labor Statistics—which is typically released on the first Friday of each month—was delayed due to the US federal government shutdown. However, the previous release showed the economy added just 22,000 jobs in August. The recent uptick in inflation coupled with various signs of increasing slack in the labor market highlight risks to both sides of the Federal Reserve's (Fed) dual mandate. Nonetheless, at its September meeting, the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) reduced its benchmark fed-funds rate by 25 basis points (bps) to a range of 4% to 4.25%, marking its first rate cut in nine months, and signalled further easing is likely at upcoming meetings. Interest rates declined during the quarter, led by short-dated yields. The two-year U.S. Treasury yield fell by 11 bps, reflecting expectations for lower policy rates given weaker economic data, particularly pertaining to the labor market. Longer-dated yields fell modestly during the quarter as the near-term path of Fed policy was offset by continued strength in economic activity and elevated inflation. The Bloomberg US Short-term Government/Corporate Index returned 1.18% in the quarter. Positive returns were supported both by a decline in yields and tightening of credit spreads. The yield to worst for the index declined 33 bps from 4.32% to 3.99% over the quarter, and the index option-adjusted spread for the corporate component of the index narrowed 4 bps.

FUND OVERVIEW

Transamerica UltraShort Bond's performance relative to the Bloomberg US Short-term Government/Corporate Index benefited from the overweight to credit in the quarter given the additional yield generated by these securities compared to the benchmark. This positioning also led the portfolio to benefit more than the benchmark from the positive impact on price due to spread tightening over the quarter. Curve positioning modestly detracted from relative returns. The largest contributors to the portfolio's relative return were the ex-index allocation to asset-backed securities, selection within investment grade corporate credit and the underweight allocation to government securities. There were no notable detractors at a sector level for the quarter. Within corporate credit, the largest contributors to relative returns were selection within and the overweight allocation to banking, and selection within insurance and capital goods. Allocations to consumer cyclicals and technology negligibly detracted.

OUTLOOK

The broad trends continue to support Aegon USA Investment Management, LLC (AUIM) economic "cooling" theme and lend credence to the Fed's pivot to the resumption of interest-rate cuts. At the same time, various economic indicators continue to show signs of robust economic activity, keeping spreads near their tightest levels. Given the persistence of risks to the economic outlook and elevated valuations, AUIM maintains a cautious risk stance and will continue to manage exposure alongside the evolving outlook.
