MACROECONOMIC OVERVIEW

Emerging market returns were broadly flat in the first quarter with the MSCI Emerging Market Index down -0.17% in U.S. dollars. Korea was the best performing country, returning +16.5%. India was the weakest country, down -18.1%. On a sector basis, Information Technology contributed the most to performance with a +11.3% return, while Communication Services stocks trailed the index, down -15.3%.

FUND OVERVIEW

Transamerica Emerging Markets Equity outperformed the benchmark during the period. Consumer Staples contributed the most to relative results at the sector level, with shares of Natura Cosmeticos leading the group. The Brazilian beauty and personal care company has made progress on restructuring initiatives and the integration of its Avon brand in Latin America. These initiatives are intended to generate higher free cash flow, which management can use to reduce financial leverage from mismanaged acquisitions of the past. The Information Technology sector detracted from relative return with E Ink Holdings as a notable underperformer. Sales of the company's digital display technology were materially below expectations in the fourth quarter of 2025. Management expects stronger growth over the next few years. The stock trades near historically low valuations with attractive prospects to grow business value over the medium term. On a country basis, India was the largest source of outperformance due primarily to an underweight allocation. Geopolitical tensions and rising oil prices weighed on the Indian market. A portfolio position in Coal India performed well, driven by rising power demand in anticipation of warmer weather demand in the spring and summer. Holdings in Taiwan detracted from relative performance. E Ink Holdings was the worst performer in the group. Shares of Acter Group Corp. also traded lower during the quarter. Acter is an engineering firm that builds clean rooms for product manufacturing. The business' revenue grew 39% in 2025, supported by demand for semiconductor manufacturing. Management issued a cautiously optimistic outlook for 2026, which still incorporates double-digit sales and profit growth.

OUTLOOK

Following a historically strong 2025, emerging market equities had a volatile start to the year in 2026. EM stocks remain attractive in the firms view, given strong earnings growth coupled with low relative valuations. Performance in the medium-term will likely be influenced by a combination of geopolitical developments, corporate governance reform, AI investment, and supply chain evolution across emerging market countries. The TSW Emerging Markets team is continuing to search for well-governed businesses with limited downside and strong long-term growth potential. TSW believes management teams that focus on cash flow growth and shareholder returns are well-positioned for outperformance over a multi-year period. The inherent volatility of emerging markets presents opportunities to invest in such companies when the risk-reward profile is favorable.

The data shown represents past performance, which is no guarantee of future results. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data quoted. Please see transamerica.com for performance data current to the most recent month-end. The investment return and principal value of mutual funds will fluctuate over time so that shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Net asset value (NAV) returns include reinvestment of dividends and capital gains but do not reflect the deduction of any sales charges. If a sales charge had been deducted, the results would have been lower. Performance for other share classes will vary.

There are no sales charges for Class I shares. Class I shares are primarily offered for investment to institutional investors including, but not limited to, fee-based programs, pension plans, and certain endowment plans and foundations. The minimum investment for Class I shares is $1,000,000 per fund account, but will be waived for certain investors.

Performance figures reflect any fee waivers and/or expense reimbursements by the Investment Manager. Without such waivers and/or reimbursements, the performance would be lower. Future waivers and/or reimbursements are at the discretion of the Investment Manager. Contractual arrangements, if any, have been made with Transamerica Asset Management, Inc. through 3/1/2027.

The MSCI Emerging Markets Index is an unmanaged index used as a general measure of market performance. It is not possible to invest directly into an index. Calculations assume dividends and capital gains are reinvested and do not include any managerial expenses.

The price of equity securities fluctuates based on changes in a company's financial condition and overall market and economic conditions. If the market prices of the equity securities owned by the fund fall, the value of the fund will decline. Foreign and emerging market investments involve risks not associated with U.S. markets, such as currency fluctuation, adverse social and political developments, and the relatively small size, lower trading volumes and lesser liquidity of the markets. An investment in emerging market securities should be considered speculative.

Shares may be sold (or "redeemed") on any day the New York Stock Exchange is open for business. Proceeds from the redemption of shares will usually be sent to the redeeming shareholder within two business days after receipt in good order of a request for redemption. However, Transamerica Funds has the right to take up to seven days to pay redemption proceeds, and may postpone payment under certain circumstances, as authorized by law.
